Some information about Cornhill

Cornhill is a training program that equips people to better understand and teach God's Word. It is designed to train people to preach and teach the Bible in a way that is faithful and engaging – not just in Sunday sermons, but Youth groups, children's ministry, in schools, on the mission field - wherever they have the opportunity.

The Cornhill Sydney course is taught by a variety of experienced Bible teachers, including David Cook, Simon Manchester, Luke Tattersall, David Peterson, and Peter Ryan. Cornhill students have regular opportunities to practice giving Bible talks with extensive feedback from experienced preachers.

Over the past couple of years, our Course participants have included MTS apprentices, lay people involved in ministry at their churches, including some retirees, people preparing for the mission field, workers with parachurch organisations such as Crusaders and chaplaincy programs, and those in full-time ministry seeking to work on their preaching.
